

Dunnock (Prunella modularis)

Status: Common breeder

Current trend: Dunnocks have benefitted from the expansion of forestry in upland Ayrshire, now occupying many areas earlier denied to them. A common, but often unnoticed species, the range expansion, from a largely lowland distribution, is clearly shown on the above map, with the breeding population now in a very healthy position.

Follow up: Further census work may detect increased range expansion.