

American Pipit
(Anthus rubescens)
Saltcoats 22/9/26

Slightly smaller in size compared to a Rock Pipit, but only noticeable when beside a Rock Pipit.
Yellow-brown in colour, hence previous name Buff-bellied.
Lores are pale & eye ring is complete.

Contrasting pale, whiteish throat with dark streaking.

Bill is relatively slender.

Buffish supercilium is broad and 'flares' out behind eye. Absent in Rock Pipit.

Dark tertials contrast with paler upperparts.

A large, dark triangular patch (not present in Meadow Pipit).
